

From: CyberMonk6@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 11/28/01 9:20pm
Subject: Concerned User

Concerned Apple user here, just letting you know that Microsoft's recent settlement proposal is absolutely ridiculous. They wish to give refurbished systems to schools in need, and that's fine and dandy. The fact is, their software will be running on those computers, and the end result will be an even more monopolistic Microsoft. It's easy to see through this attempt at nullifying their own punishment, and I hope you'll see this as well.

P.S. A more understandable punishment would be forcing Microsoft to buy computers for schools in need that would support something other than their own Windows (Apple Macintosh is the obvious choice).

Josh Hattersley